Junior high girl credited with saving family lives

The Gene Webb family is alive and well in Canyon to celebrate Mother's Day today thanks to the cool action of 14-year-old Christy.

The family credits Christy with saving their lives after they were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes while spending last weekend in the Colorado mountains.

Mrs. Webb tells this story of their adventure:

The Webbs are members of a Panhandle-wide four-wheel drive vehicle club and went with other club members to Monument Lake in Colorado.

"We arrived at Stonewall, Colo., Friday night and set up camp," Mrs. Webb said. "My husband, Gene, lit the vented heater (in their motorhome) about 2:30 a.m. Saturday morning and I opened a window."

At 5:30 a.m., Christy, an 8th grade student at Canyon Junior High, awoke her mother to report she was sick at her stomach.

"I realized when I got up and fell several times that we were being poisoned by the heater and tried to wake Gene and my son, Craig (a junior at Canyon High)," she said. "I told them to get out, opened another window and the door before I became unconscious. Gene tried to get to me and fell unconscious beside me in the doorway.

"Christy somehow managed to push me on out the door and found she couldn't push Gene (who is 6-1 and weighs 170 pounds) so she just got his feet and shoved him out head-first and fell out herself.

"Craig got out — he doesn't remember how — and went for help. Christy couldn't see Craig so she went back in to find him.

"I came to and found Gene wasn't breathing and tried to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation but didn't have any extra breath myself."

Finally, some came to help and together the visitor and Mrs. Webb found an emergency oxygen kit. But, meanwhile, Jim Burkhalter of Amarillo began giving Gene mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and Gene revived.

The Webbs were rushed to a Trinidad hospital where Christy, Mrs. Webb and Craig were treated and released. Gene was released Sunday.

"A lot of people helped us and we are very thankful to them," Mrs. Webb said, "but if Christy had not reacted as she did in an emergency it would have been a tragedy."

The family returned home later Sunday.

Even with a tornado and severe thunderstorm watch out for the Randall County area during the afternoon Friday, this workman had a job to do and he did it, mounting the radio antenna which is atop the Randall County Courthouse. While Amarillo news media reported citizen sightings of tornado activity north of Canyon Friday afternoon, local law enforcement officers patrolling in the same area made no sightings.

Legal action threat by mother of senior

Mrs. Webb and daughter, Christy. . .cites presence-of-mind of Canyon Junior High student.

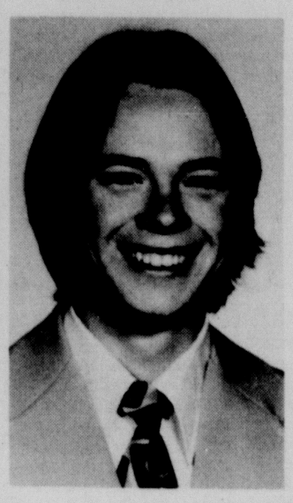
The mother of a Canyon High School senior whose picture will not appear in the CHS yearbook because of the length of his hair threatened possible legal action to force the point Friday.

Mrs. Kay Madewell, mother of 17-year-old David Madewell, said she will go before Canyon School Board members May 20 to seek a reversal of a decision given her by CHS administrators last week.

Mrs. Madewell said she was told by Principal John Sommer that her son's picture will not appear in the annual yearbook produced by journalism students because his hair does not meet the School Board-mandated dress code rules.

"My husband says he's going to hire a lawyer to see what our legal rights are and what the law is," she said.

"It's not a question of his character or his morals, but of personal taste," Mrs. Madewell said.



David Madewell

She questioned the decision, particularly in light of the fact that her son has never been sent home from school or even told to have his hair cut by school officials.

Nor, she said, was he told by any school official that his picture would not be in the yearbook because of his hair length. She says she noticed his picture was missing from a senior picture panel which is furnished students as part of their photo package by an Oklahoma firm.

Then, she said, she inquired of Sommer why her son's picture was not included in the panel and was told his picture would not appear in the yearbook, either.

Mrs. Madewell also complains of a policy at the school that senior pictures for students whose dress does not meet the CHS dress code cannot be retaken locally for inclusion in the yearbook.

"I think the whole thing is arbitrary," she said. "This picture should go in there. There's nothing wrong with this picture. But, if his hair was down to his behind they should have told him (his picture was not to be included in the yearbook)."

Mrs. Jean Shepic, yearbook sponsor, said school administrators are given copies of the senior pictures to make a determination on which pictures should or should not go into the yearbook each spring.

But, she said, the students are not without warning that their pictures will not be included in the annual if their dress does not meet the dress code.

"Every summer they are sent a letter and reminded that if they do not meet the dress code their pictures won't be used and it's the same with juniors and seniors," she said.

Sommer said Assistant Prin-

Life-saving machine is sought for Canyon woman

Life for Mrs. Glen Williams of Canyon is assured every other day by a machine.

Mrs. Williams suffers from a disease her doctors call polysystic kidneys, a disease which would be fatal were it not for a kidney dialysis machine in Dallas.

Since Easter Mrs. Williams has been in that East Texas city — away from her family — to receive thrice-weekly treatments on the machine she must use to cleanse her blood.

The Canyon Community Family Services Association this week begins a major fund-raising drive with the goal of collecting enough contributions to purchase a kidney dialysis machine for the Williams. If the drive is successful, Mrs. Williams will be back in Canyon as early as mid-August.

Mrs. Carmen Hernandez of the CCFSA said the group's goal is to raise at least $2000 through local contributions — from individuals, from churches and from social and civic groups.

Funds collected through the drive will go into special accounts for the purchase of the kidney machine at the First National Bank and the West Texas State Bank. Donations should be earmarked for the kidney machine fund.

Funds collected, in addition to the purchase of the machine, will also be used to help defray expenses for the Williams family as her husband spends this summer in Dallas learning to operate and maintain a kidney machine in anticipation of bringing his wife back to Canyon.

Doctors have told Williams and his wife that she has probably suffered the kidney ailment since her childhood in Portales, N.M. But, it was last fall that the disease was positively identified and this spring Mrs. Williams was referred to Dallas specialists where the kidney machine is available for use.

Williams said the disease is irreversible.

"Other than a transplant she has to have a kidney machine," he said. "I've talked to the doctors about a transplant and they say we'll talk about that later."

As an outpatient Mrs. Williams must go into the hospital in Dallas three days a week and there she is put on the kidney machine for six hours.

Williams hopes to go to Dallas on June 12 to begin instruction in how to operate the machine for his wife. The instruction period is about six weeks, he said. He hopes to have her back home by mid-August.

Currently, Williams said, there is only one kidney machine in Amarillo — at St. Anthony's Hospital — but that machine is for emergency use only.

The nearest kidney machine is available at Clovis, N.M.

The Williams have three children living at home — Drew and Becky, 16, and Lane, a 6th grader at Rex Reeves Elementary School.

Williams is a shop teacher at Caprock High School in Amarillo. The family has lived in Canyon about seven years and are active members of the First Baptist Church.

Hightower amenable to renewed relations with Castro's Cuba

U. S. Rep. Jack Hightower said here Friday he would be amenable to renewed opening of diplomatic relations with Cuba, but would not favor trade concessions with the communist government.

Hightower, in Canyon as keynote speaker at the annual banquet of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, told The News the determination on whether the United States should reopen diplomatic channels with Castro is up to the President.

"We can't forget Cuba is a Marxist country and that has not changed," he said. "The fact that it's 90 miles from our borders is not significant.

"We have diplomatic relations with China and Russia and I suppose every Marxist government in the world with the exception of North Vietnam and if it would serve the diplomatic purposes of this country then I think the question is up to the President."

Hightower said it could be that a reopening of diplomatic relations with the Castro government is something "we might ought to have."

Recent news media reports from Cuba indicated Castro has expressed interest in thawing the cold war-type relations his country has had with the U.S. since his take-over in the early 1960s.

Hightower told The News the Vietnamese refugees — more than 100,000 of them — are now in America and must be dealt with, but he said the President's proposed expenditure of $507 million for their care is "way too high."

"These people are here and they have to be resettled," he said. "Sixty per cent of them are children and many are in large families and they shouldn't have $50,000 per person."

Hightower suggested the United States try to resettle some of the Vietnamese refugees in other countries around the world.

"I don't think they all need to stay here," he said, "although I'm just glad the originally predicted numbers did not materialize."

He said original estimates indicated more than a million refugees might be brought into this country from a fast-fading South Vietnam.

In retrospect, eyeing U. S. involvement in Vietnam, Hightower said he believes the Congress was justified in passage of the War Powers Act which curtailed Presidential war-making powers.

"For many years in this country, no President even considered taking us into war without Congressional action," Hightower said. "I hope we can go back to that time. I think Congress was correct in passing the War Powers Act. The President needed to know how much string he had."

Of his role as a freshman representative in the House of Representatives, Hightower said he is a participant in the meetings and caucuses of the 92 freshmen House members, a group which has received national publicity in this Congress for its reform attitude.

"I'm not in sympathy with some things they've done," he said. "I do think as far as the seniority system is concerned, it was time we made a change."

The freshmen forced changes earlier this year in the seniority system in the House, forcing out several old-time House leaders from positions of power.

"Unfortunately, Mr. Pogue, a dear and good friend, was one of the first victims of that," he said.

Umbarger water project reopened

Umbarger community leaders are being asked to update their request for federal funding for construction of a pure water system for their town with the anticipation that funding may become available after July 1 for the project.

Robert Lord, engineer for the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, said Friday he's received word from the Farmers Home Administration of the action on the Umbarger request.

"The project is still active," Lord said.

He said the FHA is now requesting that Umbarger's leaders update the cost estimates on the project, which would provide a centralized water well and sanitary water lines for the homes and businesses in the immediate townsite property. Cost figures compiled last fall when the request was turned in to FHA indicated a total cost of $121,000.

"They have to have more recent cost figures to determine the

Hutton still critical after accident

LeRoy Hutton, Randall County Clerk, remained in critical condition Saturday at Brackenridge Hospital in Austin suffering severe injuries received early Friday when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver as he crossed an Austin street.

Hutton, first Republican county clerk in the State of Texas since Reconstruction, remained in the intensive care unit of the hospital with a broken neck, lacerations of the scalp, concussion, internal bleeding and a fractured ankle.

County Judge Woody Pond, who kept close tabs on Hutton's condition throughout the day Friday and Saturday, reported that the clerk regained consciousness briefly on Friday but lapsed again into a coma.

Pond said Austin police still have not located what they believe to be a pick-up camper with out-of-state license plates,

Ben F. McDonald, left, director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, was keynote speaker Friday night at West Texas State University banquet for visiting city officials participating in an orientation program for newly-elected city commissioners and mayors. Visiting with McDonald prior to the banquet are George Loudder, center, former Canyon city manager and now executive director of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, and Dr. Walter L. Shelly, program director.

Government coming back to people

While during the past four decades the federal government has been assuming the responsibilities of local governments, that trend is now being reversed and local governments have the opportunity to be truly responsive to their citizens, the director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs said Friday night.

Ben F. McDonald, former mayor of Corpus Christi, was keynote speaker at a banquet for newly-elected city officials attending an orientation seminar at West Texas State University.

"Government left the community back in the 20s, the 30s and the 40s," McDonald said, "because the cities were not responsive to their people. We had government by categorical programs.

"Today we have a chance to get government back because local government is becoming responsive."

McDonald told the 40 banquet guests that the current trends in allocation of federal and state resources constitutes a "New Federalism" wherein the local community has broad discretion in determining the needs of the community and the funding needed to serve those needs.

"We firmly believe that the best government is that which is closest to the people," he said. "This is the fundamental concept of the 'New Federalism: bringing the government back to the people."

During the 1960s, McDonald said, the federal government assumed direct responsibility for the great number of social service programs developed during that decade.

"But now we are in the 1970s, a time in which we recognize that the community should be the best judge of what it needs," he said. "No longer should a community expect government to tell it what it needs."

McDonald urged the area city commissioners and mayors to learn the federal and state programs available to them for use in their communities and to be responsive to citizen needs.

A major aid in sorting through the various government programs available for local governments, he said, is the Texas Department of Community Affairs, the newest department at the state level.

Describing the TDCA as middlemen in the new relationship between federal, state and local governments, McDonald said his department "can take advantage of the size, expertise and resources available in state and federal government while effectively utilizing and coordinating similar attributes on the local level."

The purpose of the department, he said, is prescribed by legislation which created the department in 1971 — to assist local governments in providing essential services for their citizens and to overcome financial, social and environmental problems; to assist the governor and legislature in coordinating federal and state programs affecting local governments; and to inform state officials and the public of the needs of local government.

To perform that function, McDonald said, the department has two main branches — com-

Death Tax A Burden

By ANN BROWN

At last, there is a movement in Congress to do something about the confiscatory federal estate taxes that have already dispossessed a generation of landowners.

Several lawmakers have tried for the last 5 years to change the "death tax" to help keep farms in the family, and prevent productive land from being gobbled up by suburbia.

As long as Rep. Wilbur Mills (D. Ark.) was chairman of the powerful ways and means committee, they got nowhere.

According to the news media, Mills was a chronic drunk who spent $1,700 a day — much of it on women and liquor. He gave up his chairmanship when he was reportedly confined to an alcoholic ward of a mental hospital.

It is understandable that such a man would have little interest in farmers who never had $1,700 a year to spend.

Mills has been replaced by Rep. Al Ullman (D. Ore.), who says changes in the federal estate tax laws are long overdue.

Rep. Omar Burleson (D Tex.), introduced HR 1793, a bill to amend the estate tax law. Already his bill has attracted some 40 co-sponsors, and more are offering their support.

The legislation would increase the federal estate tax from its present $60,000 to $200,000.

"Inflation has made the $60,000 exemption out of date," said Rep. Jerry Litton (D. Mo.), a member of the House Agriculture Committee. He agrees $200,000 would be a comparable figure today.

The proposed legislation also links estate taxing to the earning capacity of the land rather than the current method of "fair market value."

A piece of wooded pasture land, or a marginal farm may have very little productive capacity. Some rich man, however, may be willing to pay $1,000 an acre for it for a second home or vacation spot.

Is there any justice in the IRS dispossessing the poor farm family, that has slaved a lifetime to pay for the land, and selling it to his rich neighbor so he can have it for a playground?

Shades of Naboth's Vineyard!

There has been a multitude of talk about "relevant college courses." Isn't it time all students took a closer look at history?

This nation was founded on a tax revolt. And taxes in 1775 were nothing compared to their present level.

Good Americans are prone to think our leaders are wise men who are making the best decisions possible.

Wilbur Mills was chairman of the most powerful financial committee in Washington. Is it surprising that our government has gone deeper in the red every year?

How many more men of Mills' stripe are creating national policies that we have to live with — and pay for?

But here's our chance to do something: Write Rep. Al Ullman, House of Representatives, Washington, D C 20515.

If you have already lost your estate to the IRS, tell Ullman about it. If you haven't tell him you want to keep what you have rightfully earned.

Elected officials will listen. Bureaucrats? Never!

OEA Student At Chicago

Linda Whipple of Canyon High School and sponsor, Mrs. Georgia Lee, of the CHS Office Education Association are in Chicago, Ill. for the National OEA Conference which will conclude Wednesday, May 10.

Miss Whipple won second place in information communication, Level II, at competitive events in Dallas recently and will be involved in the national competitions.

Nationally, about 3,000 are involved at the conference and are selected through elimination at regional and state levels. OEA provides students the opportunity to develop office occupation competencies through 24 competitive events ranging from individual contests in stenographic, typing, office duplication, job application and human relations areas to group contests in parliamentary procedure and other chapter activities.

The competitive aspects of OEA increase the students' subject knowledge, competitive spirit, human relations knowledge and practice, confidence and rewards fellowship and socialization. The year's chapter activities in OEA helps students to plan and participate in future civic affairs as citizens of their communities.

A Change Predicted

By CARROLL WILSON

An early-summer prediction: Cloyce K. Box, chairman of the board of regents for West Texas State University, will not be reappointed to the board when his term expires in August.

Box, a rough-and-tumble former football star-turned business magnate, has become an albatross for Gov. Dolph Briscoe and, as such, he's virtually outlived his usefulness to West Texas State University.

The Dallas corporation kingpin was cited in a lawsuit filed last fall by Sissy Farenthold, Democratic opponent of Briscoe, for allegedly contributing several thousand dollars to the Governor's campaign war chest after allegedly gathering $100 contributions from members of his staff and other corporation employees.

While Farenthold has dropped her lawsuit, Box and his campaign contribution have remained before the public eye—most recently in an article in "Texas Monthly" magazine.

Briscoe, a hard charging conservative who likes to picture himself as Mr. Clean, simply cannot afford the kind of adverse publicity that would be inevitable were he to reappoint Box to the board for West Texas State. Too many questions would be asked about what influenced the appointment.

For that reason—and that alone is enough—I think Box will be off the board permanently after his term expires.

But, there is another indication, I think, that Box will not be reappointed by the governor.

Briscoe has appointed Dee S. Osborne of Houston to fill out the unexpired term of State Sen. Kent Hance who resigned in January after being elected to the Senate.

Osborne's business credentials make Box look like a piker.

According to affadavits filed with the Secretary of State in Austin, Osborne is in the following business enterprises:

He is co-chairman of the board and a director of Cullen Center Bank and Trust of Houston; vice chairman of the board of Texas State Bank in Austin; co-chairman of the board and a director of Texas Bank and Trust of Houston; vice chairman of Citizens National Bank of Dallas; advisory director of San Filipe National Bank of Houston; chairman of the board of Cullen Savings Association of Houston and director of the Robertson Distribution System in Houston.

In addition, he is a key official in more than 50 oil and gas trusts and also in a dozen other oil—and gas-related companies.

By comparison, Box's affadavit lists him only as chairman of the board and president of the OKC Corporation of Dallas, and as a director and stockholder of the Citizens National Bank of Dallas.

My theory is this, and I've seen it verified in practice:

Men appointed to boards like the WTSU regents are steeped strongly in a business-world ethic which puts the emphasis on success credentials. Time after time, they will select as their chairman or as their president, the man who has been the most successful in the business world. He is looked to as a natural leader. Often, as in the case of Box, this is probably because of his personality.

My bet is that Briscoe has appointed Osborne as a sort of replacement as strong man on the board for Box.

At this point, it would only be speculation to wonder what kind of trade the university will be victim of.

One thing is apparently clear—Osborne was not a football player.

Frankly, if Box does go off the board in August it will be none too soon.

A picture of conflict emerges for university observers ever since new President Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins took over from Dr. James P. Cornette two years ago.

As you'll recall, Box supported Dr. Bill Miller for the presidential post and his candidate lost.

From all appearances, Box is still supporting Miller for the slot, or is at least trying to make life anything but rosy for President Watkins.

The two have clashed at least twice behind closed doors in recent months—once over the control of the athletic program at the university when, according to reliable sources, Watkins was instructed to leave Gene Mayfield alone, and again after Dr. Emilio Caballero stepped

Observers are still trying to figure out why Box postponed the scheduled and required May meeting of the board of regents until early in June. The only answer they can come up with is that it's part of a general harrassment program.

Box promoted and engineered the renewal of a three-year contract for Mayfield, apparently over the quiet protesting of other university administrators, and the university is now in the strange position of having an athletic director who possesses a contract which runs for a longer term than does the contract for the president of the institution.

West Texas State in the years since 1969 has seen a transition of more than modest scope, a transition away from a board of regents which cared less what happened in the Texas Panhandle to a board of regents whose chairman has his nose too much involved in university business.

Lloyd Watkins has done a good job in his two years here. He's openly studied literally dozens of changes. Not all of them have worked, but he's had the guts to try them and not to be rebuffed by failure.

If his goals for WTSU, goals which those of us share who want to see the university prosper, are to be realized, he must operate a little less under the shadow of Cloyce K. Box.

If my prediction is correct, he will.

Senior Citizens Corner

This week's featured senior citizen is the president of Canyon's Senior Citizen Association.

E.R. (Dutch) Cleavinger is a 1929 graduate of WT and spent 22 years in the teaching field. Sixteen years were spent as superintendent of schools at Texline, Vega and Stinnett.

In 1945, Cleavinger opened an implement dealership here in Canyon with his brother. Then, in 1957, he went into the cage layer hen business and operated the business until his retirement in 1968.

As president of the senior citizens group, Cleavinger is optimistic about it's growth. "I think that in time, we will involve 500 senior citizens in our organization," he said. "It's going to be a growing thing as soon as people know more about what we do," Cleavinger added.

The membership of the organization now stands at between 150 and 175 according to Cleavinger.

When the president of the Senior Citizens is not busy presiding over the group's acitivities, he gets in a round or two of golf.

Miller Says Action Underway On Fires

Dear Carroll,

Your article in the Sunday, May 4, Canyon News regarding fire protection on the campus at West Texas State University was very informative and timely. It has made us realize that there are problems concerning fire protection on the campus that need to be solved as soon as possible.

I would like to expand on some of the problems which you spoke of in your article. The underground water system at West Texas State University certainly is antiquated since it was installed in the 1930's and 1940's. However, we do not have any buildings that would be 1,000 feet from the nearest city fire plug. Each building on the campus is located within 600 feet of a city fire plug. We have requested appropriations from the State Legislature to begin reworking our entire underground utility system. This would, of course, include adequate water supplies for fire protection. We have also requested from the State Legislature $100,000 each year of the next biennium to begin a safety program on our campus which would certainly include adequate personnel for designing additional fire protection apparatus as well as individuals who would oversee the safety and protection of our students and employees. Fire alarm systems have been installed in the women's dormitories at a cost of $4,855 within the last month.

The fire plug which has been concreted in is not useless as it is, but I have ordered a replacement for this fire plug since it is very old and antiquated. I might point out at this time that the snorkel fire truck used by the Canyon Fire Department was purchased through an agreement with West Texas State University whereby West Texas State University paid half of the cost of the equipment. West Texas State University donated the land for the water tower east of the campus which substantially increased the water pressure in the east part of Canyon. I have personally inspected the fire fighting equipment in the Old Education Building and the Old Administration Building and have ordered substantial changes to be made in the fire hoses and additional fire extinguishers to be installed. The particular rooms you mentioned in the Old Administration Building which might be subject to fires without adequate escape routes for students and employees will be closed to classes at the end of this semester since these classrooms are no longer utilized for large classes. We have requested $290,000 from the Legislature to renovate this building and to provide adequate fire escapes.

The fire plug which you mentioned was fenced off from use by the Fire Department and will be either moved to a more accessible location or the fence will be removed. During the nine months I have been here, no one from the Canyon Fire Department has discussed fire protection on the campus with me. Two weeks ago, I personally discussed our problems with the State Fire Marshal, and he is sending a crew to recommend a comprehensive plan to upgrade our fire protection system in the immediate future.

The insurance rate of Canyon citizens would not be affected in the event of a major fire since the State of Texas prohibits purchase of fire insurance on any building which does not have an outstanding bonded indebtedness.

Again, let me thank you for your article, and we will be happy to work with the fire marshall, interested citizens, and any others in order to provide the ultimate in protection for our students and employees.

Sincerely,
Hermas L. Miller

ERA Pros Wrong On Benefits

Dear Editor,

Contrary to the impression conveyed by the supporters of the ERA Amendment, the ERA is not needed to combat employment discrimination against women which is prohibited by the Civil Rights Act of 1964, by various presidential executive orders, by the Equal Employment Act of 1972, by Equal Pay Act of 1963 discrimination in higher education is prohibited by the 1972 Education Amendment and a 1974 law makes it illegal for lenders to discriminate on the basis of sex or marital status. One might even note that the Fourteenth Amendment guarantee of equal protection of the laws applies to all persons.

Would not the ERA Amendment encourage those who have perverted previous laws and regulations, create new abuses?

WT Friends To Aid Library

The Friends of the West Texas State University Cornette Library met in an organizational meeting recently and elected officers as well as adopted their constitution.

Named as chairman was Dr. Allen Early, WTSU assistant professor of economics, and as vice-chairman was Dr. Zell So-Relle, WTSU professor of speech, both of Amarillo.

Mrs. Delpha Gard, WTSU associate librarian, was appointed as secretary, and Ms. Frances Jones, associate librarian, will be treasurer.

Four ex-officio members will also sit on the governing board, to include the WTSU vice-president for academic affairs, president of the WTSU Foundation, the WTSU University librarian and the past-chairman of the Friends. Currently the first three of these slots are held by Dr. Ray Malzahn, Frank Blackburn, both of Canyon, and Leonard Gunderson of Amarillo, respectively. Six members-at-large will be elected by committee later in the year.

University Librarian Frank Blackburn told the group that a drive is currently underway to obtain WTSU faculty and retired faculty memberships. By fall, the organization plans to involve the WTSU student body and Golden Spread community members.

Yearly dues for a regular member are $10, excepting WTSU students which are $3, for contributing members $25, for sustaining members $100, for patron $200 and for life members $1000. All contributions are made through the WTSU Foundation and are tax-deductible.

The Friends of the WTSU Cornette Library was formed in conjunction with the "Books for Buffs" drive currently underway. The long-range goal of the drive is to obtain $1 million for books.

You can sell most anything with a SEEK ad. Call 655-7121.

Famous Conductor To Be Guest At WT Choral Music Camp

Dr. Lynn Whitten, nationally-known choral conductor from the University of Colorado, will serve as guest conductor for the West Texas Choral Music Camp and Choral Conductors Workshop June 22 through 28 at West Texas State University.

The fifth annual camp will be an intensive program of choral music study for students who have completed the seventh grade through high school students.

Two choirs will be featured at the close of the camp and participants may audition for ensembles such as madrigal groups, men's quartets and girls' ensembles.

At an additional fee, private voice lessons will be offered. Additional offerings include state choreography, University Interscholastic League solo preparation, theory and conducting. Scholarship awards will be presented to winners of the Talent Night competition.

Total expenses for the camp are $60 including $30 for room and board and $30 for tuition. Enrollment deadline is May 31 and registration will be June 22.

Choral conductors participating in the workshop June 23 through 27 may earn one semester hour of undergraduate or graduate credit. Registration may be completed between June 2 and 6 for persons enrolling in this and other courses during the first summer term. Persons registering for this course only may register before noon on June 23.

Participants will observe Dr. Whitten in lecture and demonstration classes with the WTSU Summer Choir daily and participate in daily choral reading sessions.

Dr. George Umberson, camp director, and Dr. Hugh Sanders, director of choral music at WTSU, are in charge of the two workshops.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Dr. Umberson at West Texas State University, Canyon, Texas, 79016.

Charges Filed On Woman

Felony theft charges have been filed by Dist. Atty. Randall Sherrod against a Tulia woman in connection with an incident which occurred when she was manager of the Dairy Queen here.

Ruth L. Perry is charged with theft over $200 and under $10,000 and appeared before Justice of the Peace W. A. "Bill" Wilson last week. Bond was set at $500.

The district attorney alleges that a total of $312 was not deposited by the manager of the Dairy Queen in late 1974 in the firm's bank account and that forged deposit slips were maintained at the business during that period.

Hutton . . .

the vehicle reported to have hit Hutton about 12:29 a.m. Friday.

Hutton had gone to Austin Thursday to testify before a House committee concerning two pending bills — one relating to increased fees for county clerks and the other to a revision in the Texas Election Code on the use of punch-card voting, which he piloted in the state.

Pond said he learned Friday that Hutton had finished testifying before the committee about 10 p.m. Thursday and had gone to a restaurant across the street from his hotel with several other county clerks.

Pond said police report Hutton was walking back across the street to his hotel shortly before 12:30 a.m. when he was struck in the crosswalk by the vehicle which ran a red light. Pond said two witnesses saw the accident.

Hutton was first elected as Randall County's clerk in 1966, his initial venture into politics after operating a poultry farm in the Amarillo area.

He was most recently re-elected to office last November as he downed a South Amarillo Democratic opponent on the general election ballot.

In addition to pioneering computerized voting in Texas, Hutton has become something of an expert on punch-card voting and has served as advisor for elections in several South Texas cities including San Antonio.

cipal W. V. McAlpin reviewed the pictures this spring to determine those which met the dress code requirements. He said he has "no idea" how many other senior pictures have been left out of the yearbook for non-compliance with the dress code.

Mrs. Madewell said she knows of two other seniors whose pictures will not appear because of the dress code policy.

Sommer explained the policy simply: "If the hair length is not what it's supposed to be, it doesn't go in."

The principal contends he did tell David that his picture would not appear in the annual because of his hair length.

He said the current policy is that students whose hair does not meet the dress code at the initial senior picture sittings cannot have subsequent poses put in the annual. He said this policy is established so head sizes and backgrounds will be uniform in the annual photographs.

The policy on dress code compliance for senior pictures, he said, is spelled out in the pre-photograph session letters and he described the Madewell case as a clear-cut case of non-compliance.

amount of the grant," he said, noting that construction costs have increased rapidly since the grant application was originally sent in.

Umbarger community leader Louis Raef was critical recently of the inaction of the FHA on his town's request for funding for the project, noting that when the grant application was submitted last fall several privately owned wells in the town were showing signs of pollution from nearby septic tanks or bore holes.

Umbarger leaders originally applied for a grant for the project back in 1970 when costs for the project were estimated at only $56,000.

Lord said FHA officials have told him there are currently no grant funds available for the project, but that Umbarger is being asked to update the cost figures on the current application "in anticipation of grant funds becoming available next fiscal year (which begins July 1)."

Lord said he is hopeful the application and project will be funded during the next fiscal year.

"I can't really say definitely because you don't know what Congressional action will be," he said, "but, it's still a live viable project."

The original grant application indicated a water system could be constructed to service as many 51 families and businesses or about 138 persons. The plans call for digging of a centralized water well with waterlines to be laid to each household and business in Umbarger.

Raef has said Umbarger homes and businesses suffer from the fact that many wells are going dry and others are showing signs of pollution from bore holes — many of which were dug only feet from the wells.

Legislature Acting Favorably On Annex

Legislation which will legalize the construction of the South Amarillo Randall County courthouse annex is apparently having smooth sailing in the Texas Legislature.

Rep. Bob Simpson said last week the bill was reported favorably from a Senate committee on Thursday and has already passed the House without a dissenting vote.

Simpson said he understands the bill, which he originated in the House, will go on the Senate's local calendar which he described as an uncontested calendar.

"I don't think there'll be any trouble," he said.

Simpson said the Thursday morning hearing before the Senate committee was also without opposition to the bill and several Senators expressed favor with the legislation.

The bill, placed before the House as an act affecting every county in the state, began its tenure in Austin as a strictly local bill dealing only with the Randall County courthouse annex. However, working of the bill was changed early in this session and the bill, if enacted and signed, will affect each Texas county.

Randall County commissioners, when pushed by news media last fall, worked with Simpson and State Sen. Max Sherman to design the bill to cover their tracks after they had already authorized construction of the $600,000 courthouse annex on South Georgia Street in Amarillo.

Current Texas law prohibits commissioners courts from constructing branch offices for any officer but the county tax assessor-collector.

County commissioners had originally planned to place offices for the tax assessor, sheriff and justice of the peace in the annex, but plans approved for the construction project call for a building with only a tax office. Commissioners have said the plans leave space enough for the addition of the sheriff's offices and the justice of the peace office after the pending legislation is passed.

The bill written by Simpson would allow the commissioners to construct and maintain an annex with facilities for branch offices for county officials except the district clerk, county clerk, county judge and county treasurer.

Teacher Retires After 26 Years

After teaching in the Canyon school system for 19 years and the Happy school for seven years, Mrs. R.C. Henry will be retiring following this school year at Rex Reeves Elementary.

Mrs. Henry has taught at the first grade level all but two years while in Canyon. "Teaching a child to read is a rare privilege. First graders have been my preference throughout my career," Mrs. Henry said. "Every day of teaching first grade is an experience," she added.

My mother was a teacher and I never knew not wanting to be a teacher. It has been a most rewarding career," Mrs. Henry stated. "The only thing that can exceed being a teacher is being a mother and grandparent."

Future plans for Mrs. Henry include "catching up on things that I've had to neglect through the years." "I even plan to take piano lessons this summer," she said.

Mrs. Henry and her husband, R.C., also have plans for their grandson this summer. Matthew Ray Henry will be here for a six-week visit with his grandparents this summer from Hillsboro, Kan. where he lives with his mother and dad, Rev. and Mrs. Robert Ray Henry.

Through the years, Mrs. Henry has seen educational trends go "from one extreme to another." She says her teaching methods have become a "conglomerated mess." "I have combined the new with the old, basic educational methods," she said.

According to Mrs. Henry, love and respect are the basics of teaching. To be a successful teacher, Mrs. Henry says, "a person msut have a love for children and give the child self-respect."

When you give love, Mrs. Henry says, you get it back in return. "When God passed out the talents, He gave me a double dose of loving children," the teacher said.

"I've been blessed also with good administration, school board members and parent acceptance," Mrs. Henry said.

Besides being an active grandparent this summer, Mrs. Henry's future will be spent in church work, hobbies and friends.

From here on out, Mrs. Henry plans to "live it up."

McDonald was one of three key guest speakers to make presentations to the city officials who are attending the orientation seminar sponsored by the university and its Department of Political Science. Amarillo Mayor L. Ray Vahue also spoke twice to the new community leaders and State Sen. Max Sherman was to speak to the officials during a Saturday morning session.

Other seminar programs included presentations on everything from finances to staff to the press. Dr. Walter L. Shelly, assistant professor of political science, is director of the three-day seminar.

"But, the point needed to be made that no longer would a man become a law unto himself just by being elected and serving a long time."

Hightower said the popular image projected of the freshmen House members is largely undeserved.

"We need reform in the system and Congress needs to assert itself more and play the originally-intended Constitutional role," he said.

Likewise, he said, criticism of Congress for moving slowly on Presidential requests for legislation on the energy crisis and solutions to the nation's economic woes is undeserved.

"Legislation is a slow process," he said. "You must go through committee hearings and all the committees have been working very hard. They tell me that from the standpoint of production we are well ahead of previous Congresses at this point."

During the Friday night banquet for the historical society, new officers of the group were recognized. They include Joe Pool of Amarillo, president; James S. Cone of Amarillo, first vice president; and Tom Christian of Claude, second vice president. Charles Woodburn of Amarillo is out-going president of the group.

Miss Lueders-Wallis Pledge Marriage Vows

St. Stephen United Methodist Church in Amarillo was the setting for the May 10th marriage of Miss Ricki Renee Lueders and Martin Wayne Wallis with Rev. William Fleming, pastor, officiating at the double ring rites.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Theodore Lueders of 4600 Oregon Trail, Amarillo and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wayne Wallis of Rt. 2, Amarillo.

A midterm graduate of Amarillo High School, the bride is presently attending Amarillo college planning to become a dental hygenist. The bridegroom is a midterm graduate of Canyon High School and plans to attend Amarillo College this fall to study electrical engineering. He is presently employed with Texas Electric Company.

An assortment of flowers backed with greenery framed the church altar with matching sets of candelabra, accented with greenery, highlighting the arrangement. The aisle was decorated with candles, garlands of greenery and streamers.

Organist, Mrs. Suzanne Rogers, presented Wedding Song, A Time For Us, Annie's Song, Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring, Scarborough Fair/Canticle, We've Only Just Begun, Theme From Love Story, and the Bridal Chorus From Lohengrin by R. Wagner as the processional with the Wedding March by F. Mendelssohn as the recessional selection.

Cindy Blair served as maid of honor and Brenda Bryant was bridesmaid. Flower girl was Miss Kendra Wallis, sister of the bridegroom. The bridal attendants wore identical jersey floorlength dresses of misty blue with high Victorian necklines of white Venice lace. The long sleeves were complemented with deep cuffs and lace at the wrists and the waistlines were marked with self-fabric inset belts. The bride's attendants each carried bouquets of white mums encircles with blue tulle and white streamers and the flowergirl carried a traditional flower basket filled with blue and white petals and adorned with white streamers.

Jamie Walker of the Palisades was best man and Ernie McBrayer of Amarillo was groomsman. Ringbearer was Kelly Lueders, brother of the bride. Ushering duties were shared by the groomsman, McBrayer, and Larry Wallis of Canyon, a cousin of the bridegroom.

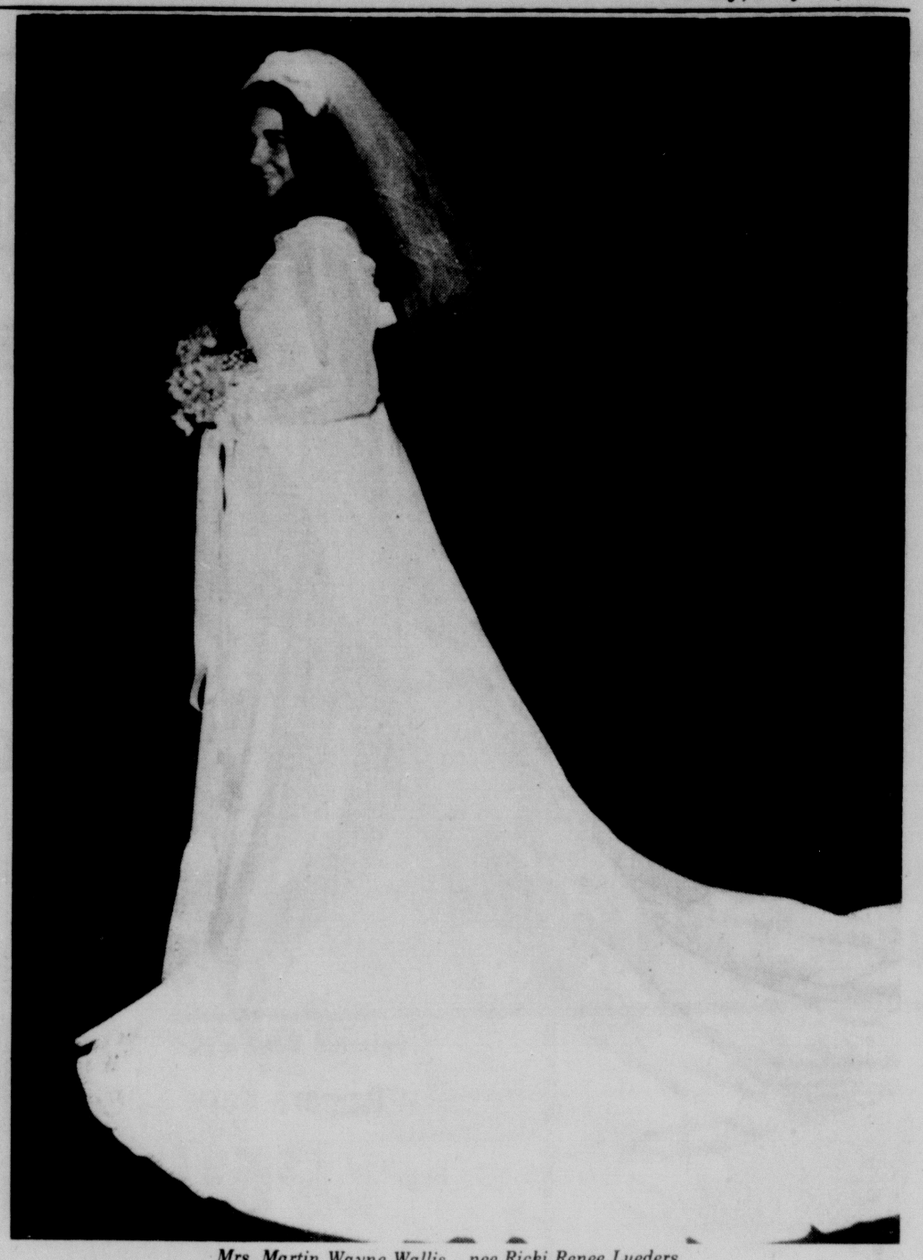
Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over bridal taffeta featuring a fitted bodice with high Victorian neckline and yoke formed of Cluny lace. The yoke was accented with seed pearls and a Cluny lace ruffle. Sleeves were long and closely fitted with lace falling in ruffles over the wrists. The A-line gown was marked by a lace band entwined with satin and the deep lace flounce swept to back fullness with a cascading full cathedral wedding train. The wedding gown was highlighted with Venice lace appliques in a floral design with seed pearl highlights and she wore a matching Juliet cap of floral lace which held a veil of elbow length illusion and a separate blusher veil. Her bridal bouquet was five Orchids arranged with blue tulle and ribbons in a cascading effect. She wore a traditional blue garter and had a sixpence for luck in her shoe.

White nylon over chiffon was featured on the table for the wedding reception immediately afterwards where the bride's cake featured three square tieres on pedestals with blue icing scallops and strawberry filling. Greenery and flowers highlighted the table candelabra centerpiece and a silver punchbowl and coffee service were used. In the serving group were Miss Mona Young, Mrs. Maxine Ashpaugh and Mrs. Sandra Bookout.

The couple departed on a wedding trip to Port Aransas, Texas and Mustang Island in the Gulf of Mexico and will be establishing their home at 4209 Ong, Amarillo after May 19.

A rehearsal dinner for the wedding party and guests was held at Travelodge West Restaurant in Amarillo by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wallis, on Friday evening preceding the wedding.

Prenuptial honors for the couple included a bridal shower April 24 with hostesses including Misses Cindy Blair, Brenda Bryant, Kendra Wallis and Mesdames Bob Flipping, Autry Wallis and Glen Vanlandingham.



Mrs. Martin Wayne Wallis nee Ricki Renee Lueders

Wedding Gifts Are Presented

Wedding gifts were presented to Miss Beth Line, bride-elect of Max Sunderman, on the afternoon of April 26 at the Jack Swatzell home, 2510 9th Avenue.

An apricot cloth with accenting apricot and white floral centerpiece decorated the serving table. Apricot punch was served from a sterling pedestalled crystal bowl and cookies and sandwiches were arranged on silver trays.

Guests were received by Mrs. Swatzell, Miss Line, Mrs. G. M. Line of Borger, mother of the bride-elect; and Mrs. Gene Sunderman, mother of the prospective bridegroom.

Towne Shopping . . .

You should not get hot in a great store. That's why for the past ten days or so there has been more hammering and nailing and sawing going on at the Towne Shop. The Wirtites have been all over the place installing a new air conditioning system that is, according to Wayne Wirt, guaranteed to put ice cycles on a customer's nose.

The job is almost done now, the duct work is complete, all the fibreglass wrapping has been installed and we even have three-phase current to run the air conditioner.

I am told that this has been a typical Wirt installation job. Terry Clark has not smiled once while Cecil Read has smiled all the time. The other Wirtmen, Ronnie Crow, Rick Strickland, Virgil Bartlett, Mike Swatzell, Keith Jones and Weldon Riley have stayed busy all the while and now all that remains to be done is a little clean up here and there.

So now, when you visit the Towne Shop on your next shopping spree, expect to be cool. We've even gone to the extra effort of installing cool air outlets in all eight of our fitting rooms so you won't suffer a hot flash while you are trying on next season's fashions. Its a little thing to be sure, but we thought you'd like to know.

Speaking of cool . . . there are some newly arrived Murrs of California sportswear ensembles that have been catching our customers eyes this week. They come in cool shades of blue and greens and they are just right for now through summer.

English Riding Is 'Dream' For University Horsewoman

After exposure to western riding at summer camps in Colorado and a university course for introductory English riding and jumping, Miss Kim Finch, 21, has her sights set on spending the fall in England to pursue her interest in horses.

Normally in the midst of West Texas sandstorms, tumbleweeds and cattle country one would expect to see a cowgirl when encountering a female in the horse-stalls — but Miss Kim Finch, with her petite figure dressed in English styled riding attire, fits none of the western riding descriptions one would expect.

"My mother rode as a girl," said Miss Finch, "and I have always been interested in English riding styles."

She went on to explain that she spent about six summers at a western riding camp at Estes Park, Colo. enjoying western horsemanship styles. She spent her first year of university studies at Texas Technological College in Lubbock but they didn't offer a riding program, so she ultimately transferred to West Texas State University because of the riding program. She was especially interested in riding when a course introducing students to English riding and jumping was incorporated here by Marjul Bright.

"I believe this is the only college course for English riding offered in Texas except for Texas A&M," related Miss Finch. "They have fine horsemanship courses along the East and West Coasts in their colleges as well as in Missouri and at the University of Colorado."

Miss Finch, 21, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Finch of Amarillo and is due to receive her degree in English at WTSU in August 1975. Shortly after graduation, she plans to leave for England where a course offering assistant instructorship certification is conducted at Crabbet Park in Sussex County, England (south of London).

The Crabbet Park riding instruction is governed by the British Horse Society which regulates all qualified riding schools by very high standards. The Crabbet Park School was once known as the Arabian horse stud center of the world, relayed Miss Finch, and is one of 15 riding schools in Britain which has been qualified for licensing.

Although she does not have and "never has had her own horse," Miss Finch has had "some very nice friends with horses to loan" to keep her interest in riding high.

"I applied over a year ago," said Miss Finch in order to make reservation for her course. The course itself will be of four months' duration and will instruct the theory of horsemanship, field practice of riding and jumping English style, as well as stable management.

Presently Miss Finch rides a horse belonging to her friend, Susie Barton of Wink, Tex., who may even join her for the English riding course this fall if her application is accepted.

"Riding English or riding western is a lot different," stated Miss Finch as she easily slung the 15 pound English saddle astride her horse.

"If I had to manhandle those 35-40 pound western saddles I don't think I'd make it!", concluded the petite university student as she rode out into the pastureland of the University Horse Farm.

University Granted Funds To Study Thunderstorms

West Texas State University has been awarded a $13,600 grant for support of a project entitled "Investigations in Atmospheric Electricity" to be conducted under the direction of William H. Beasley of the Department of Physics.

The grant funds are provided for support of the project for a 12 month period as stated to Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, university president, by letter from Gaylord L. Ellis, grants officer for the National Science Foundation in Washington, D. C.

Severe thunderstorms of the region are of utmost importance to the study of atmospheric electricity which will be included in the research program provided by the fund grant.

The investigations proposed at application for funds were three fold and include:

1) to record and examine the rates of occurrence of V.L.F., H.F.; and V.H.F. radio emissions from storms in an attempt to discover possible identifying characteristics which might be used to differentiate between ordinary thunderstorms and severe storms, especially those bearing tornadoes;

2) to test the theory that the infrasonic power of thunder increases in proportion to the square of the number of strokes in a lightning flash;

3) to learn techniques of sferics mapping, to help develop a real-time V.L.F. sferics-mapping techniques, and to investigate the relationships between lightning and precipitation in storms by working with the Environmental Radiometry Group at NOAA, Boulder in the summer of 1975.

Museum Looking For Best Season Yet

From the American Bicentennial to just plain Western fun, the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum's summer movie fare promises to be the best season yet.

The audiences will also be impressed with the Museum's new facilities — a large, comfortable lecture room on the second floor of the main building.

William S. Hart will gallop across the Museum's silver screen June 8 in "On the Night Stage," a 1915 50-minute silent film that was his first feature picture.

On June 15, "new-western" star Tom Mix replaces Hart for "The Heart of Texas Ryan," a 45-minute western romance whose silence will speak all the louder with Museum educational director Patti Kilpatrick's taped music.

Laurel and Hardy romp to the rescue of a little girl with a gold mine in "Way out West" June 20, followed by the W.C. Fields classic "My Little Chickadee" June 29.

July will be Bicentennial month at the Museum, and its historical series begins July 6 with "1776," a joyous historical musical on the making of the Declaration of Independence Howard Da Silva and Ken Howard.

Following "1776" will be "The Light in the Forest" on July 13, a Walt Disney movie following the trials of a white youth adopted by the Delaware Indians in 1764.

Other movies tentatively scheduled for later in the summer are three Walt Disney flicks: "The Living Desert," "Johnny Tremain" and "The Great Locomotive Chase," and "All Quiet of the Western Front" and "Cheyenne Autumn."

BUDGETEER'S BOUNTY: NUTRITIOUS, DELICIOUS OCEAN PERCH!

The swashbuckling hero in the food picture this season is ocean perch. A powerhouse of protein, this fine-flavored fish costs just pennies-per-mouthful-a real bounty for supermarket shoppers searching for a bolster for their sagging food budgets.

Ocean perch is a treasure trove of food values, too. Besides being an economical source of high quality protein, it contains essential vitamins and minerals. It is a boon for those watching their cholesterol intake, because what fat it has - only 1.2 grams per 3-ounce serving - is the polyunsaturated variety.

In addition to providing nutritious eating at bargain prices, tender, flaky ocean perch lends itself to a variety of cooking methods and dishes. Bubbling in a chowder pot, baked in a tangy sauce, or fried and served with down-south corn fritters, this treasure from the sea is a taste treat for everyone from the small buccaneer to the captain of the crew.

Not only does ocean perch reward consumers at the dining table but also at the supermarket check-out counter. It helps ease the pinch of high food prices where it hurts the most - in the pocketbook!
